75 Victorian silver Defence of Lucknow (1857-1858) medal, awarded to Lieutenant A.R Loughnan 13th Regiment N.I, with Defence of Lucknow bar. According to The Leader political weekly newspaper No.408 January 16th 1858, an account was given by Brigadier Inglis which reads as follows: A strong column advanced at the same time to attack Innes's post, and came on to within 10 yards of the palisades, affording to Lieutenant Loughman, 13th N.I, who commanded the position, and his brave garrison, composed of gentleman of the uncovenanted service, a few of her Majesty's 32nd Foot, and of the 13th N.I an opportunity of distinguishing themselves, which they were not slow to avail themselves of, and the enemy were driven back with great slaughter, Brigadier Inglis concludes by honourably mentioning the names of several officers and others who specially distinguished themselves. A general order of the Governor-General in Council announces the following recognition of the services of the Lucknow garrison:- Every officer and soldier, European and native who has formed part of the garrison of the Residency between the 29th of June and the 25th of September last, shall receive six months' batta (monetary payment). 83 WWII German ink blotter, discovered by Sergeant Alfred James Rosen S/991593 RASC (solicitor). The Allied Forces entered Berlin two months after the fall of Berlin to the Russian Red Army. Sergeant Rosen was a member of Royal Army Service Corps who with others explored the bombed-out Reich Chancellery where he discovered this ink blotter amongst the rubble and ruins. The ink blotter is of tooled maroon leather and bears a red paper label 'Der Fuhrer und Reichskanzler' with the emblem of Nazi Germany and measures approx 20 x 10 cms, the blotter has a square grip that unfastens to release the top from the base when new blotting paper is required. The lot comes with associated photographs of Sergeant Rosen amongst the ruins and rubble of the Chancellery. The photographs show the absolute destruction of Berlin after the fall to the Russian Red Army. Notation to the back of the photographs relating to the Chancellery are primarily dated in pencil July 1945. The Allied Forces entered Berlin two months after it fell to the Russian Forces in the April and May of that year after fierce fighting and the loss of 200000 civilian and military lives although the exact number is not known. Amongst the rest of the photographs are pictures of the Russian Cemetery, Brandenburg Gate, Victory Column and the damaged Amazone zu Pferde an equestrian sculpture by Louis Tuaillon (without it's tail). Also accompanying this interesting lot is Sergeant Rosen's Soldier's Service and Pay Book. An interesting item and worthy of further research. Est.£500-£800

325 Thomas Rowlandson entitled 'The Dentist', pen, ink and washes, signed on the mount, 27 x 21.5 cms.

Note: Thomas Rowlandson was an English artist and caricaturist of the Georgian era, noted for his political satire, wry humour and social observation. Born in London in 1756 or 57, he first exhibited when 18 years old and soon found praise amongst his contemporaries. Rowlandson enjoyed drinking and gambling and was often in debt, he would paint saleable drawings, watercolours and make prints to stay ahead of his habits. His caricatures recall the often awful reality of 18th century life, he was prolific and worked with speed, leaving us with a considerable record of the Georgian and Regency era.
